Army Air Forces Training Command

FOSTER FIELD

HEADQUARTERS
ARMY AIR FORCES ADVANCED FLYING SCHOOL

Office of the Commanding Officer

FOSTER FIELD, TEXAS

To the Personnel of Foster Field,
Matagorda Island,
Matagorda Peninsula,
Port O'Connor:

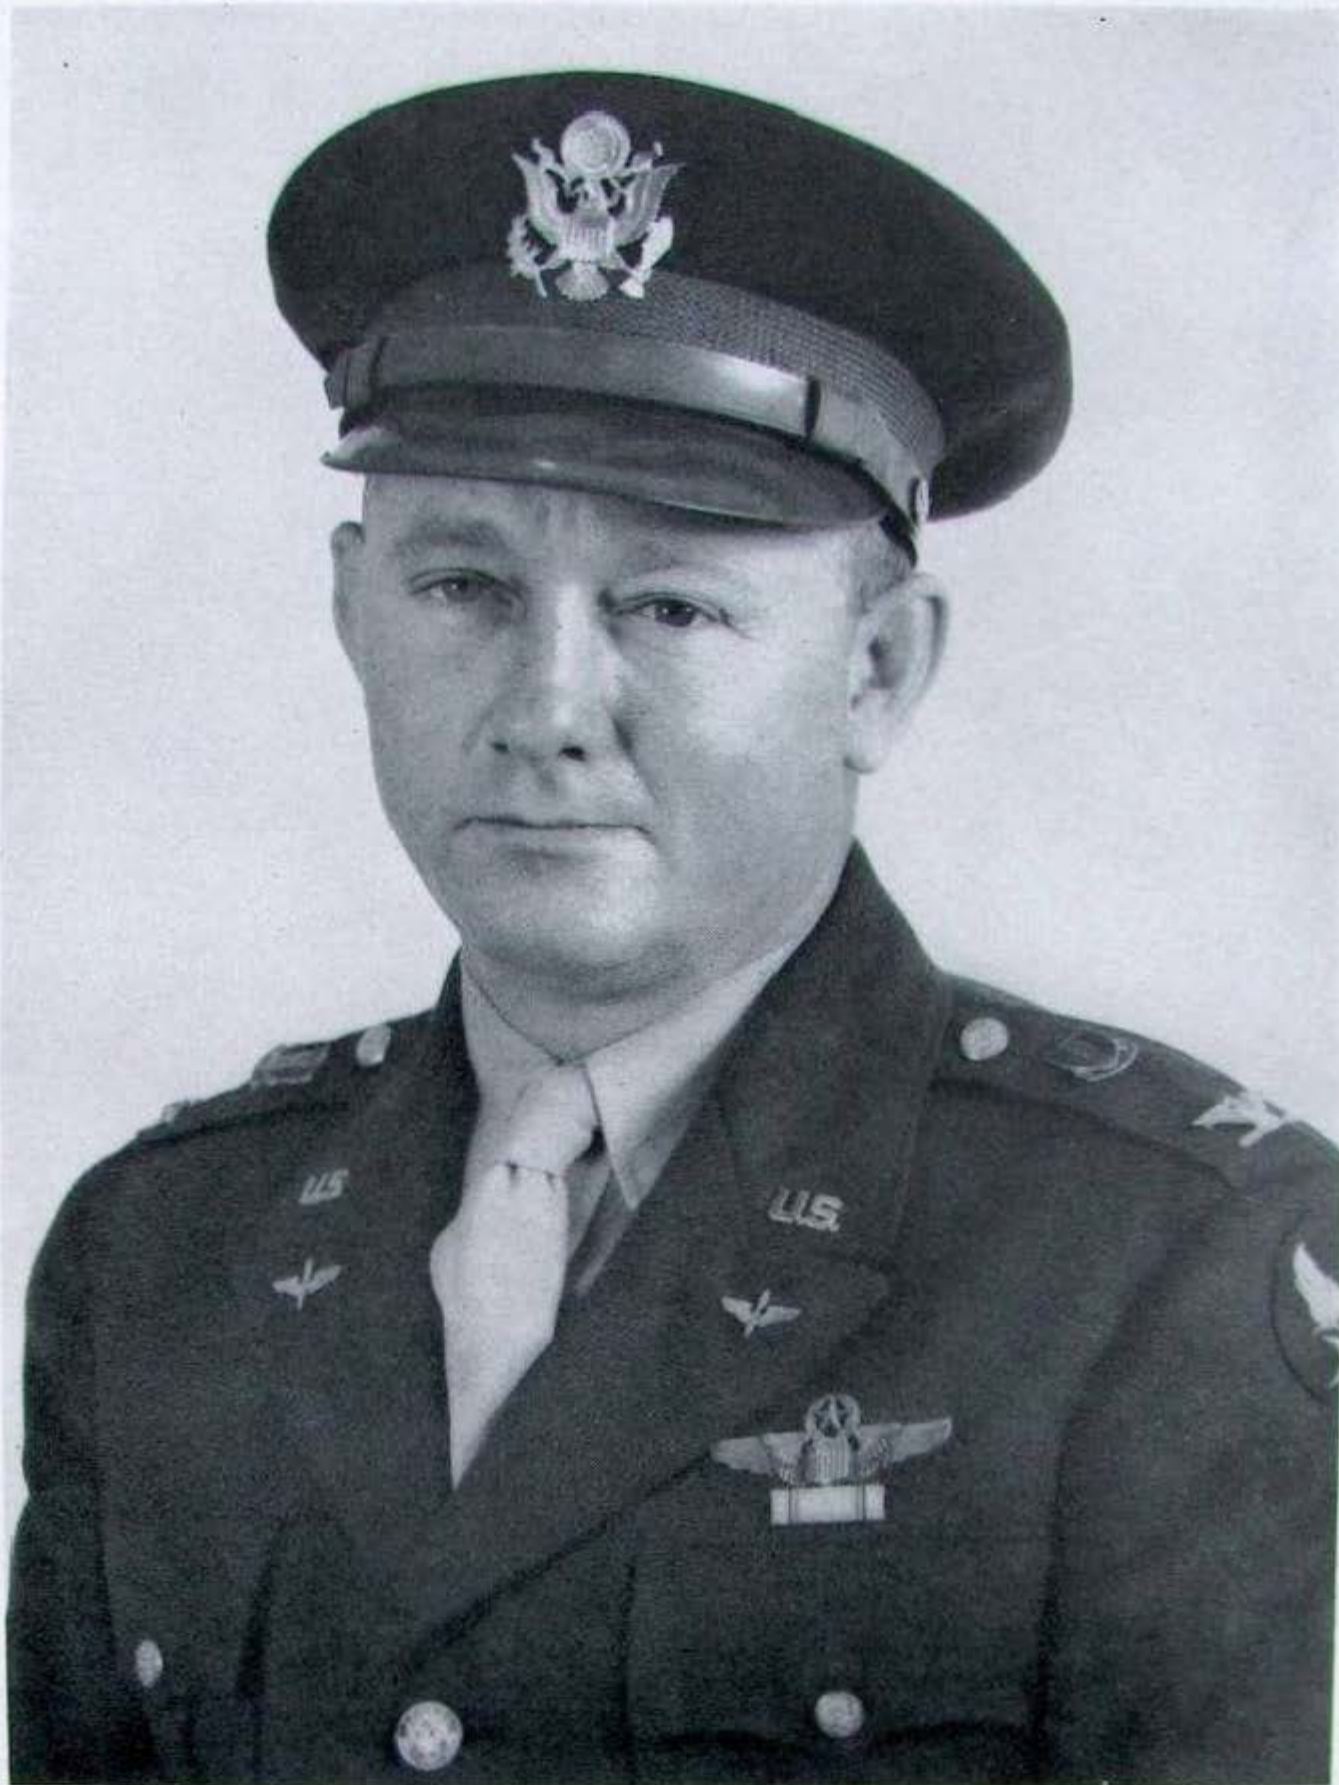

With Foster Field having just passed its second anniversary, I am most happy to have this opportunity of greeting the men and women who contribute so much to its success as an Advanced Single Engine Flying Training School.

In turning out well-trained fighter pilots for the Army Air Forces to send to challenge Axis airplanes on the far-flung battlefronts throughout the world, the men and women of Foster Field and its sub-posts at Matagorda Island, Matagorda Peninsula and Port O'Connor are doing a job of the greatest importance.

The success of your work is constantly reflected in the reports of the marvelous accomplishments of officers who have won their wings at Foster Field.

H. H. VAN AUKEN
Colonel, Air Corps
Commanding

HANLON H. VAN AUKEN

COLONEL, AIR CORPS

Commanding

Born October 15, 1906, at East Chicago, Indiana, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard R. Van Auken. Graduated from Bloomfield (Nebraska) High School in 1924 and entered Yankton College, Yankton, South Dakota, before attending Columbia University and Albion College, Albion, Michigan, where he received an A.B. degree in 1928. Entered military service as a Flying Cadet in October of the same year, receiving his flight training at Brooks and Kelly Fields. Commissioned Second Lieutenant at Kelly on October 12, 1929.

First assignment as an officer was at Selfridge Field, Michigan, where he served as a junior officer in a pursuit squadron. In 1932, he was sent to Wheeler Field, Hawaii, where he spent two years before returning to Selfridge Field as commanding officer of a service squadron and materiel officer of a pursuit group.

He was promoted to First Lieutenant during his second assignment at Selfridge, where he remained until 1938, when he was sent to Randolph Field, Texas. He was at Randolph from 1938 until July, 1941, when he came to Foster Field. He was advanced to Captain in 1940, Major in 1941, Lieutenant Colonel in January, 1942, and to Colonel two months later.

He came to Foster as director of flying and was named commanding officer on July 3, 1942.

His wife is the former Helen E. Beatty, of Mt. Clemens, Michigan, and they have two daughters, Sharon and Patricia.

HISTORY OF FOSTER FIELD

Foster Field observed its second birthday August 12, 1943. The first contingent of soldiers arrived August 12, 1941, to activate the advanced fighter pilot training school where aviation cadets complete their training and win their "wings."

Actual construction work on the field, which lies east of the thriving community of Victoria, Texas, began early in 1941, but it was not until August that personnel began arriving in large numbers. Nearly every department was manned a month later.

The field's first commanding officer, Colonel Warren R. Carter, now a Brigadier General, headed the base until June 30, 1942, when he was transferred to the Flying Training Command. His successor was Colonel H. H. Van Auken, present commandant, who was formerly director of training.

An integral part of aviation cadet training at Foster Field is aerial gunnery. Classroom instruction and synthetic gunnery are completed at Foster, but the actual shooting takes place at the Matagorda Gunnery Ranges, sub-posts of the Foster Field command.

The gunnery bases, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Charles A. Miller, are located on Matagorda Island and Matagorda Peninsula, a few miles off the Texas coast in the Gulf of Mexico.

A Central Instructors' School for Fixed Gunnery is now in operation at Matagorda Peninsula.

Flying was initiated at Foster Field in October, 1941, with Aviation Cadet Class 41-1. The class was graduated five days after Pearl Harbor. Since that time, Foster Field has been turning over fighter pilots to Uncle Sam at regularly scheduled intervals in keeping with the program of the Gulf Coast Training Center, which is a part of the vast Flying Training Command. Foster Field is the oldest single-engine advanced training school in the training center.

Known unofficially for many months as Victoria Field, the air base received its official title on January 15, 1942, and on February 22, Foster Field was dedicated in memory of the late First Lieutenant Arthur L. Foster, air corps instructor who was killed in a crash at Brooks Field in 1925. Arthur L. Foster, Jr., son of the man for whom the field was named, received his "wings" and commission here in the spring of 1942.

Foster Field grew by leaps and bounds during 1942. New buildings were erected, sidewalks were laid, and grounds landscaped. Its rows of spotless white buildings, surrounded by well-kept lawns, shrubs and flower beds, form an attractive pattern on the Texas prairie land.

An important date at the field this year was Saturday, May 15, when the first contingent of WAACs—now WAC—arrived. Many of these feminine soldiers now work in jobs formerly held by men, relieving able-bodied soldiers for jobs in combat zones.

Foster Field's fighter pilot training program has paid off big dividends to Uncle Sam and the Allies in their fight to crush the Axis. Reports from far-reaching battle fronts reveal many Foster graduates have won citations for their heroism and capability.

On these two pages maintenance crews are seen at various repair and maintenance jobs. This work is the Air Forces' biggest behind-the-scene job. The life of its pilots and efficiency of the planes depend on the accuracy and skill of its maintenance crews. Each plane undergoes a regular check-up after a certain number of hours in the air.
