Distribution and habitat [edit]

Non-breeding plumage

The breeding habitat is across the north part of western Canada and Alaska. In the winter the Golden-crowned Sparrow migrates to Vancouver Island in Canada and the West Coast of the United States. It is usually found in Northern California in the fall and spring.^[2]

Breeding [edit]

It nests in shrubby habitat above the treeline or near the coast and lays 3-5 brown-marked greenish white eggs.^[2]

Kingdom:	Animalia
Phylum:	Chordata
Class:	Aves
Order:	Passeriformes
Family:	Emberizidae
Genus:	Zonotrichia
Species:	Z. atricapilla

Binomial name

Zonotrichia atricapilla

(Gmelin, 1789)

Behavior [edit]

The song is a three-note whistle, descending in pitch. It is very distinctive, and often described as "oh-dear-me". The call also sounds like I'm so weary, so Alaskan gold miners along the trails called this bird "Weary Willie". However, birds in the mountains of British Columbia have been reported to have a trill on the third note, rather than a clear whistle as in other populations. These songs are heard mainly in the breeding season, but also in the wintering grounds just after fall migration as well as just before they take off for spring migration.^[3]

I still don't know what a Higgs Boson is because it takes a physicist just to get through the first paragraph - there is no analogy or example to clarify this invisible thing.

This page incorrectly cites Clarence Clemons death as happening in "July 2011," but Clarence actually passed away a month prior on June 18th, 2011.
