*In the time we spent together, many words have passed between,
And the feelings that we shared are all behind us now,
'Cause a change has come upon me, and I'm surely not the same.
There is so much more than what we feel and live each day
Relentless, unchanging*

*Though the world is still before me now,
I'm seeing forever.
I will keep my heart
and mind with you, so joyously I'm waiting for the day.*

*In a single timeless moment,
When the old was cast away,
the new was born
into a world of simple joy.
And my life is still for living Though it's seen through different eyes
And the knowledge of the truth's a burden easy to bear.*

*Look in the mirror and tell me just what you see What have the years of your life taught you to be Innocence dying in so many ways,
Things that you dream of are lost, lost in the haze.*

*Hold on, baby hold on 'Cause it's closer than you think
And you're standing on the brink
Hold on, baby hold on
'Cause there's something on the way
Your tomorrow's not the same
As today.*

The California Tec

THE CALIFORNIA TECH

THIS WAS a year that was devoted to searching; whether for typos or a unifying theme, the Tech looked high and low, usually not successfully. This was a year that many traditions fell prey to changing times: the old fashioned masthead disappeared, as did the words "The Rivet" from the Rivet, as did the ears (for a short while, anyway).

First term, the Tech was searching. The editors, Stuart Goodnick, Grover, and Ollie Graves, and the interim Business Manager, Gavin Claypool had many questions that they wanted answered; questions that took time to answer. Specifically they wanted to know: 1) which just-off-the-boat frosh could be conned into running the Tech, and 2) when the hell would they appear.

As first term progressed, it became evident that one frosh actually wanted the editorship of the Tech. He wanted the job so bad that he helped to con two of his [ex?]friends into becoming co-editors-in-chief. This was well taken by the departing editors who discovered that Ollie was demoted to Associate Editor by UASH. First term ended with only one surviving editor, one defacto assistant editor, one "staff liason" (a sinecure if there ever was one), three layout clones, one still-searching-for-his-replacement Business Manager and not one new Business Manager in sight.

Second term started with the revolt of the layout trolls. In a bloodless coup led by Tracy Furutani [yes, he's the one], the new Tech trio of Roger Fong, Ed Suranyi, and Tracy [sometimes Terrence] Furutani assumed control of the newspaper after the Stuart Goodnick, the sole surviving editor, headed for the hills. In an orgy of yellow journalism and character assassination, the Tech started second term with sensational front page stories of how Stuart abdicated. In this infamous series of stories starting on January 9, this poor over-worked ex-Tech editor was ridiculed and portrayed as a power-hungry and conniving flake by a certain writer not unacquainted with the same. Stuart later returned, graciously tolerated the slanderous remarks printed about him, and settled down to become a fifth columnist. He even supported the election bid of this new Tech trio. Despite strong opposition from NO, this new Tech trio was actually inflicted on the office of editor. Second term also saw the revolt of the machines. These faithful servants of the previous administration now started to act up and/or die. But still the Tech got printed. And second term still went by without a new Business Manager.

Third term started with a call for the return of all of the "humorous" old columns of Tech past. Jumping to the call came Random Numbers and something new and just as loved by ex-Tech editors called Prince(ess) Charles(ene) of the (she)-Srithii. Other columns that graced the pages of the Tech at this time included Billie and Ich, The Body Shop, The Mind Shop, and Dwain David vs Robert Lang letters. But the most important occurrence of all was the appointment of Mike Doty as the new Business Manager. A fate worse than death?

Third term also saw the comeback of the ex-Tech editors. For the last issue before the Rivet, the new editors went into semi-seclusion [ed note-at least some of us did], while the old editors, David Younger, Alan Loh, and Stuart Goodnick, took over the helm of the Tech. The Rivet did, in fact, come out on time this year and the Tech eds can still spell.

And Men Who Can Handle It

As Ruddock reaped the fruits of rotation, we found that we had once again acquired over 40 frosh. Upon being baptised into the Class of 1984, our collection of neophytes found Ruddock to be a warm, friendly place where any sophomore might be looked upon as a big brother. Some found Big Brother's incessant husbandry a little irksome, though, and sought release in the person of Emmanuel Goldstein Frink. The frosh found Party organization too great, though, and in the end the pledgemaster escaped unscathed. (Heresy!)

The Grand Amalgamated Alley Challenge gave us yet another exercise in applied veggy engineering and Trojan Alley came away the valedictorian. Several alley challenges turned out to be rather memorable. Pandemonium found Moose less receptive to being twirled than they had hoped. Grand Central's raid on the excomm was judged the best terrorist act, but only after an elaborate attempt by Alley Five to screw-up the seismo-lab (with the earth-shaking consequences) had failed. And the 1st of April found Trojan's underwear hanging from Millikan.

Truely, though, Ruddock owes Judd Fine a tremendous debt of gratitude. The effects of his creation were to reverberate through the house the whole year long. Returning from summer vacation and finding the frisbee field (alias "The Court of Man") in desperate need of liberation, over half the membership of Ruddock House decided to enhance the western theme of "Horizontal Pillar" by incorporating the aspect of mobility in the sculpture. Having been so enamored by Mr. Fine's work, Berkeley South was subsequently to dedicate a special exhibition in his honour: the "Judd Fine Memorial Bathroom." It was a magnificent success.

Fingle took a week's refuge in Pandemonium, and certain individuals (names withheld to protect the guilty) involved Ruddock in a year-long fiasco when they found that the Fleming flag had been taken from them.

The Grand Canyon Suite once again raised its involute head.

And so did the Rudd Loch Monster. Yes, indeed. This year's interhouse revolved around an inhabited swamp and an old scottish pub. Not only was the pub a comfortable place to congregate and listen to music provided by the Ruddock band, but the marsh was marshy and the monster was scary (or at least amusing.) For those more inclined toward the leisure sports, the halls of Ruddock boasted a miniature golf course. Sid and Anthony co-authored the success and a multitude of Rudds lent a helping hand.

Elections this year provided unmitigated proof of the wimpiness of the senior class. Not only did a myriad of underclassmen escape, but, due to the careful scheming of Greg (Moi?) Sorenson and others, Sid was captured (Heresy, part II) and given a thorough tour of the house's showers.

And we love you, too, Kaitlin.

Halloween always excites me.

The year was also to see a change in the personalities of at least two alleys. Alley three, the peaceful study alley of the year before, slowly but surely took on the character of its namesake, Pandemonium. And alley one never even approached the intolerable odiousness of its grand tradition. The absence of Doug and Geoff, the mellowing of Ri-Chee and Rusty and the mellowness of alley one freshmen combined to reduce Berkeley South to the point where Scott Prahl fit right in. If this change could be demonstrated in any coherent way, it was made evident by the fact that the halls of Berkeley South remained a beautiful piss-yellow long after a delegation of Rudds had taken it upon themselves to repaint the white and black halls of which Berkeley South had been so proud.

This year also saw its share of Rudds moving off-campus. Well we always did like a big frosh class....

In interhouse athletics, a strong third place seemed to have Ruddock's name on it. And weekly frisbee started slowly, but by third term the sport of gods had assumed its proper place in house activities. The Bonzo's did respectably, finishing the season five and five.

All told, it was a fine year for Ruddock. It must be admitted, however, that the year seemed to drift by with little unifying theme. Yet one shred of reality shone out in the darkness, showing the way for any who were lost:

A.J. was undeniably prugly.

REPORT ON SUBVERSIVE ACTIVITIES:

During the period of our investigation, the following actions were observed by our agents:

Frosh were subjected to the ordeal of Rotation, though it appeared that upperclassmen were tormented even more than they. The membership reabsorbed previous members who had temporarily escaped to the Outside—Big Frank, John King, Mark Altobelli, Vivek Joshi, Erik Gunderson, John Faughnan, and Greg Hullender. The initiation of Frosh was treacherously sabotaged by thROB, though the foolish newcomers then cruelly forced themselves to eat breakfast at Tommy's. Lloyd disguised itself as a convention center for wizards during Caltech Interhouse, and Erik revealed himself. The old bar was substituted for modern art and a new bar built to aid in the drugging of helpless addicts. The Superpower that was Penthouse Alley was surgically reduced to a single room, while the remainder became Guano Alley after losing a pool tournament to Momma Creek's boys. The new OC contingent was named Crater Alley by UCC Clint Knott. Dinner announcements became increasingly long and poorly coded, and a rating system was devised by John, Dan, and Ray which seemed heavily biased against Erik, and others who wasted time. A poor little Pooh Bear was horribly crucified by Keith. Hutton, Strauss, and "Kieth" became involved in a graffiti war over head quality and so-called donkey lincolns.

Caltech's football team won a couple of games, and Steve was arrested by the PPD for arson ("Book 'em Dano... Arson 1"). This terroristic action was nearly surpassed by an attempt to plant a Tactical Hydraulic Device (THD) within the Rose Bowl, prevented at the last moment by alert guards. Charlie, Steve Martin, Juanito, and Joel were arrested, but managed to get a suspended sentence by mentioning the name "Wally Walter" to the Judge.

Fingle was snatched by Ruddock, and Charlie's Inferno retaliated by kidnapping a Rudd and subjecting him to the standard foot-tickling and sock-smelling tortures. Lloyd challenged Ricketts to a Foolsball tournament and Fleming's attempt to shower Steve Martin (for his jokes, of course) in Lloyd was easily rebuffed with the help of Nelson and Cushman. The Big Red flag was then handed over to Ruddock, who then lost it.

Humphrey masochistically became Dan's barmaid, and Ted Williams became a PDP-11 peripheral. Rubik's cube became a bar toy and the new standard of single mindedness. Tom Christian got himself another Teddy Bear. Meanwhile, the sounds of dogfighting reverberated through the house as the gamers played Richtofen's War@Guano reverted to Amber. Wally roomed with a noisy bird and Francois wasn't very quiet either, according to Humphrey. As the final event for the outgoing administration, there was a Ben Valdez hunt, which symbolically portrayed Ben's work on the social team. Rumor has it that there was a love triangle between Dan, Kaitlin, and Ruddock, perhaps related to Dan's New Celibacy (DNC). HQ began using chemical warfare.

The house elections went fairly well, with the "Center Party (CP)" emerging victorious. An attempt by Corona to acquire a more influential position in the house failed, thanks to BETRAYAL by Ray Snyder. But C.R.A.P.P did get to shower the Gullible Geek (GG) first. Of course, Wally was over-anxious to step into his shoes during the short absence. ASCIT elections were a defeat for Lloyd, but the Excomm and Student Investment Board (SIB) were successes. Inferno rigged a "Roommate Game (RG)" and Valhalla beat HQ in volleyball. Kostka tried to tape Charlie's snoring, but it broke Jeff's stereo. The new Crater Alley (CA) succeeded for lack of a newspaper and became a radical faction in its own right. Nothing happened in February. C.J. joined the Organisation for some reason, as yet undefined. The girls kicked (soccer) balls for practice. The Inferno Inter-Alley Challenge (IIAC) almost came back to life, as some Lloydies watched stag films while listening to the sound tracks of Yogi Bear Movies (YBM) everyone else was watching. What's your Shore number?

The boys at 150 South Chester held an Invitational Tanning Competition (ITC) that was really a great party ("THE BEACH IS THATTAWAY!"). To Lloyd's surprise, Robert and Sally revealed that they had a daughter, Julie Kornfeld. Les and Keith turned the long-tortured Pooh Bear into a Pooh-skin rug. The strippers came and went. Robert arranged a camping trip to train people in the art of "roughing it."

Ditch Day (DD) was preceded by a senior diversion and breakfast that fooled all the underclassmen. When the real thing came, some underclassmen tried chaining all the senior's cars, but they all made it to "THE BEACH," anyway. Kerry's stack involved an adventure-like program, but the real adventure was finding your way around the bugs. A TV crew watched as the five senior Corona stack was solved (and drunk). Howard and Chris used the old self-destructing bribe trick. Dan's stack was unusual in that you were supposed to shoot the door. Mike and Don were feeding people even before the door was opened. Dangor tested Lloyd's driving talent. Foolishly, thROB didn't leave a bribe so his room became a modern art exhibit (displaying welded architecture).

Though the year in sports was not good for Lloyd, they didn't do so bad in foootball. Some analysts have taken this is mean that Lloyd's football tradition survives even now.

On the following pages is photographic evidence of Lloyd's threat to National Security (NS). These photos were found in the rooms of Ray Snyder, Mike Nelson, Don Benton, Kerry Kurisaki, Charlie Strauss, Bob Hill, and Joel Ennis.

CORONA

"Corona—where "beautiful" is not just another adjective—it's a way of life."
—Bret Burns

Ever dream of drowsing in the sun beside a pool of deep blue water? You've just played monumental golf with the world's beautiful people. No crowds. Not a nerd in sight. And in a moment, the best bartender in Pasadena will bring you a precisely blended drink. That's the vacation life that tourists and other casual visitors to Pasadena never see. It goes on all the time behind the private doors of CORONA.

Being Beautiful isn't so hard, its being BIG that counts.

Dabney House

There is no Dabney House by day. There is no remembrance but at night. It was all bonfires and ghost faces of friends. It was a dance in moonlight—a slow richness. It was all sweet smoke.

Dabney House cont.

Sometimes, I get the feeling we're just waiting here—not really doing anything. Caltech's just a place for waiting. A midnight train station where people gather, not to meet, but just to sit awhile. We make some feathery conversation with someone we only thought we'd seen before. Twiddling our thumbs at 1:30. A sweet romance by two. We'll all be gone by morning.

If Caltech is a place to wait for life, then Dabney is left the even more vague position of a place to wait for Caltech. A place to wait for a bit of motivation to come showering down in order to do a bit of homework, and not have to think about that face I keep seeing whose lack of an expression is a problem too risky. I don't want to wait anymore. Once you wait, everything becomes waiting. What changes it? What makes it not waiting but an expression of oneself?

*****

If I say I love you, will you hold my head up for me? Will you stroke my hair? Shall we talk about high school victories or injustice in academia?

Soccer was a popular activity at Dabney House this year, perhaps for the first time in its history. Dabney House's history, that is, although it may be soccer's too. Soccer is a game played with an inflated leather ball, a goal, and eleven players. The object of the game is to butt or kick the ball into the opponent's goal while protecting one's own goal. Only the goalies may touch the ball with their hands. A smile is a simple thing made by lifting the corners of the mouth. A picture is a simple thing—a primitive art. You can picture a smile. You cannot picture soccer because you cannot make another feel soccer. That is why there are no pictures here of Dabney soccer games. Picturing is a primitive art whose power is limited to that point when you kick the ball and there is a moment between expectation and observation that shows up as a grimace on your face. No one knows why it is a grimace, but whatever the reason is it means that there are no pictures of soccer, only pictures of its pain.

In Dabney House where affection is a skill and love is an act of desperation and even those around us are drawn by our stage, a good comedian never laughs.

Dabney House cont.

There has to be an affirmation of life. That's the difficult art. Condemnation is mere craft—an affirmation of our unfinished. We need a time for building. There is magic to be done.

Dabney House cont.

So what happened this year was not that we had a great drop day party and we all got wasted, or even that our true love took after someone else. It was something entirely different. More simple and infinitely more troublesome—there is no objective truth, only feeling.

ALLOH

FLEMING

HOVSE

Rotation week finally ended, and with the assistance of RA's Kris and Theresa (and of course Sarah) Meisling, Fleming was able to pick a great frosh class.

Rich Schirato's announcement about Dr. B. Hayes and the Fleming House Chapter of the American Audubon Society nearly brought an untimely end to the formal meal, but somehow the show managed to go on. Chuck Lindsey had an extremely short term as Pledgemaster, so Vice President Jamie Abbott took it upon himself to insure that President Bryan Dunkeld and Headwaiter Larry Friedrich went on the Grand Tour.

The old flag was retired at the beginning of the year, and a new one was made to take its place. It was only a short while before someone got the (now stale) idea to steal it. We waited two weeks for its return before redistributing the furniture from the Ruddock and Blacker lounges around the campus. It turned out that the Rudds had stolen the flag and had managed to lose it. Much to our disgust, they only had to pay $60 for its replacement. After getting another $60 from the Master of Student Houses, we were able to buy material for still another flag, which was constructed and put up third term.

Apocalypse Now was the theme for Interhouse, and a longstanding tradition was broken when all the work was finished on time. John McNally supervised the job of flooding the entire courtyard and turning it into a jungle river. John Quackenbush, with help from Philbert and frosh, constructed a makeshift bridge across the courtyard, and Loudon Campbell attempted to make explosives to destroy it. The explosives didn't go off, but Richard "Frustrum" Koenig did the job with M-80's from Tijuana. Gary Tornquist put up a huge temple scene on the Alley 5 wall, and Gloria Badilla was in charge of turning the lounge into an officers tent.

Larry Lader wrote the play, Heat of Darkness, in which Martin Shear (Larry Friedrich) had to overcome numerous obstacles in order to get to and do away with Colonel Klutz (Ed Lambert.) Other performers included Tornquist as Dean Whale, John Lovberg as President Smurph, Mike Pearson as the buttock house "Nobody-toid-me-about-a-flag" president, and of course, numerous Flems as the supporting cast.

Frosh

Second term brought orange wars, frosh wash, Indoor Olympiad, and much to the relief of the outgoing officers, house elections. Bryan Dunkeld passed on the bell to Bill Crowe, and Dave Dowling replaced Jamie Abbott as V.P. Greg Gaudet returned as Secretary and the office of Treasurer once again went to Rick Paquette.

Sharon Sarchet left her post as UCC4 to join Armand Capote, Ken Gant, and Ned Wingreen as the new Social Team. Bobby Januska, newly elected Ath Man, resigned to become UCC4. The rest of the new Ath Team (John McNally, Perry Walker, Don Hendrix, and Stewart Peebles) carried on without him.

Acting on the principle that "more is better," the house elected five alley one frosh as the new batons, and created a new title, house food. Bill Crowe won it by insisting that he couldn't be elected.

Sophomores

back row: Gary Ibáñez, David Durham, John Quackenbush, Armand Capote, Karl Clausing, Tze Kin Ip, Rob Helbing, Nick Gross, Lorna Anderson, Joe Garvey

After a few false starts first term, the Big Red Machine was finally rolled out second term to bring the cannon home. Seniors Steve Schneider and Gary 'Whale' Tornquist handled most of the mechanical aspects, while Dunkeld okayed the move with practically everyone in order to make sure that we will be able to keep the cannon for a long time. About 80 Flems participated in moving the cannon from Southwestern Academy in San Marino, and the news coverage was sufficient, but mostly inaccurate.

The house did reasonably well in athletics this year, winning the Discobolus Trophy. However, page edged us out by five trophy points to take the Interhouse Trophy.

Outdoor Olympiad started about a half an hour behind schedule, since the frosh arrived late (Gant forgot the baton.) The Juniors took five firsts and a third place to win the Olympiad, followed by the seniors, frosh, and sophomores, respectively.

As a surprise to everyone, a combined Fleming-Dabney Team won Kelrof, racking up just under 225 miles in the twenty-four hour relay.

Our frosh looked so impressive that the page frosh refused to make the traditional football challenge, so the frosh accepted a challenge from the Ruddock frosh instead. Needless to say, our frosh won.

Juniors

front row: Cathy Petroff, Bill Crowe, John McNally, Pete Wong, Sharron Sarchet, Charles Ng, Bobby Januska
 back row: Ed Lambert, Perry Walker, Mike Pearson, Loudon Campbell, Greg Gaudet, Don Gaver, Rick Koenig, Yang-tse Cheng, Glen Swindle, Lee Laroco

back row: Larry Lader, Gary Tornquist, Said Rashedmarandy, Bryan Dunkeld, Larry Friedrich, Derek Lillie, Bill Gee, Jamie Abbott, John Marshall Gilliland

The year finally ended, and graduation arrived with a bang, as the seniors fired the cannon to commemorate the occasion. Nearly all the seniors graduated, with Friedrich and Dunkeld just squeaking by. Pat Huber returned from a two year leave to pick up his B.S.: who knows, maybe even Jessie Slater will come back to get his degree.

This year the seniors executed a long talked about plan: wearing red gowns to commencement. Brad Werner made the arrangements to get the gowns, and they definitely added some color to the ceremony.

All things considered, it was a very good year.

Blacker House

It sort of went like this:

First term reared its head and Moles from all over poured into Pasadena. A major victory over inaction was won with the reappearance of BLACKER shirts. The composition of the group sent to frosh camp was slightly altered by John Fill's decision to spend his senior year at UCSB (BS-CIT). He remained one of our most involved off-campus members. Other changes included the replacement of Toni & Charlie with John & Di Barker as RA's. Davis Finley returned and moved into Fleming house, following his stochastic policies.

Frosh Camp gave an early indication as to how the frosh class would develop, while the camp reps went about their typical ways. Tricia, calm and serene head of the group bounced along; Steve was never far from the water; John was seen being dragged up a hill cursing at short poeple; Reese was playing soccer, frisbee, volleyball and whatever at the same time; and CJ just played.

Rotation was not nearly as unpleasant as expected. The only problem was that a good portion of the frosh class picked the house. Some two dozen frosh were picked, welcomed into the open arms of the waiting upperclassmen, and later cleansed in the annual Rite of the Holy Lounge Run. In fact, it took a record 28 minutes to take care of them.

The treasurer, in her last act, arranged MUG night; the beer flowed, Arbo turned down some hash (no ketchup), and the evening's entertainment was provided by Sprawley, who in an act of drunken rationality lit the chandelier on fire and attempted to put it out with a broom. A single fire extinguisher took care of both the fire and Sprawley. First term rolled along right up to Interhouse, this year a Jeff Yantis rerun. Yup, a waterfront bar, complete with gambling and a stage show. The frosh outdid themselves, and the guys seemed to be just as sleezy as the girls. The shows were well attended by appreciative, if well lubricated, audiences and Cap'n Bill's Bar did a good deal of business. Dan Kegel made a terrific Barnacle Bill.

The Posh Dinner was held at the Ath, as usual, and Moles got a taste of true Gracious Living with Duck a l'Orange, fine wine and Flem waiters in their places.

Christmas saw Mr. E. Burrito visiting for several days. He and others played the newly installed ASTEROIDS machine in Tunnel lounge. Blacker Lock & Key flourished, as did THC. Santa brought us a package from the Planet of the Apes in the form of Denes Zsolnay. Sonia Balcer got smart and got out.

New Year's Day came and went; normal insanity settled back down on Pasadena, as did the smog. The Faculty Fellows program was initiated during second term and Blacker has the good fortune to have Tom Tombrello and Bruce Cain as their fellows. The incredible, fantastic social team outdid themselves with a trip to the Grand Canyon. The Geology Bus carried off 25 or so anxious Moles for a three day hiatus. The thrill of hiking down to the bottom and back up, seeing the sun rise at 11 am, and lying next to the Colorado River made the rest of the term almost bearable for some. The house also saw The West Side Waltz at the Ahmanson. The RA's kept getting tickets for parking in their own spot, and the rest of us just got tickets. Blacker's array of exotic cars increased with Tom Soulanille's Lotus purchases, Denes' upping the 914 ante to three, and the spontaneous generation of another Rhondamoble.

Gophers were sighted in Tunnel and were vigorously if not competently dispatched. Craig Minor's Zoo Juice rivaled that of the master (SR). Craig also revived and reconstructed the Blacker Bar, now in operation in the library. The seniors ate a hundred Tommy's burgers a hundred days before graduation (burp!). Second term sillies had a brief life in Cannes when Jon Leech was attacked by rolls of film. Flick and Colwell, in the interest of saving his Math 1 homework, quickly dowsed the poor victim, who engaged a bunch of those slimy frosh in Dabney in an ill-fated revenge. Elections were held; those stepping in: Steve Ryan, prez; Reese Faucette, veep; Carol Bryan, secretary; Steve Beccue, treasurer; Zofo, Hoco, and ROTC brat, social team; Dairiki & Byrne, ath men; Chris Mau, librarian; and energetic Dan Kegel as BT&E troll. John Nye, immediately after stepping down as Alley Challenge arbiter, challenged Cannes to what amounted to bowling without using holes. The scores ranged from 22 to Ravine's best-ever 99! It wasn't enough-Heaven proved its superiority. The RA's (in a display of anti-ordinariness) held a tribal gathering one Thursday night. The Transylvania Transvestites had their apartment full of Pub Aborigines, Tunnel Punks, Cannes Upperclass Twits, and Vatican as the Lost Tribe. The complete set of Lounge furniture was stacked for the last time before a couch and chair randomly caught fire. The lounge was spared from furthur damage by Robert Horn's nose and froshly curiosity.

172 houses

Third term saw John Fill return from UCSB to camp out on the sleeping porch and to live in the grad houses in preparation for being a real Grad Turkey. Pirooz moved there, too. Denes was reinstated in short order and proceeded to cut throats. Drs. Rossman and Lance Davis were our Faculty Fellows. Sarah Ryan showed us what it's like to be a little hick; Mark's sister visited, too, thus sparing the house from the madness of Prefrosh Weekend. A weak PCDE took place two days early (them crafty scurves!). Hellwarming happened with more food than the women could possibly eat. The rest of the house helped with the leftovers the next day.

On the following Friday, the lounge filled with music and smoke and QED took place, with thanks to Kurt Bachman and Tom Cross. SUCKED was two days later, and during the course of the hunt, several seniors' Ditch Day clues were found next to ZBill's Ball. It was no surprise that the next day was Ditch Day with the seniors trailing off to Laguna, or in Newton's case, flying off to SB. Terry's anticipated brute force stack turned out to be a bowling alley, with a delicious bribe; Bruce Martin, John Nye and Sethu Palaniappan made us listen to music to get the clues; Mari made us drive around to find pictures of pictures of clues; Jill made us find her monkey; Alison, her stamps; Kamins managed to keep from being restacked with quality food. Newton did not (with the real thing) and some clever frosh gave him his own personal beach in Room 14. The whole day made up for the highly successful Ditch Day feint the seniors pulled the Wednesday before.

As the term came to a close, Wine Tasting and Fondue was held at the home of a surprised Sunney Chan. The Associates' Tea was held again in the grand, glorious, traditional style. Vince Powers became a member of the House, Rick Walker was elected to replace Steve Beccue as treasurer, Craig Minor officially became barkeep/librarian when Chris Mau also decided to seek the asylum of the UC system, and a demon revival took place. Aggressions against Saga were taken out on the Dabney flag, with potatoes, steak bones, corn cobs and cans of tomato soup shooting out from the cannon across the Filipino courtyard (besides, they asked us to do it).

RF1 was a smashing success, the blackboards in perfect precision with The Ride, and 153 Noyes suspiciously full of non-Frosh. Graduation brought Paul Belmont out of the rain and mixed feelings among the seniors, but there was no mistaking Mike Newton's maniacal grin when the rumor of his graduation became a reality. Moles dispersed to the wind again with the promise that THE MAGIC BUS would be there to greet them in September. I want it I want it I want it I want it.

Good morning Barbara

RC appears in a flash of smoke and fire

The year began bright and cheerful with the usual doldrum of Rotation. Following a strong house tradition, rotation was highly successful, with the house getting many good although wimpy additions. Actually, once initiation got under way, it was the Sophmores who proved wimpiest. When Wednesday appeared to be the last day of initiation, the initiation chairmen ordered the remaining Sophmores to hide in their rooms until Thursday.

Greased Frosh Races

Once again the mighty Page Dudes attempted another interhouse project that would have been infinitely studly had it worked perfectly. As it turned out, its studliness was only finite but still at least an order of magnitude above the other houses. The original plan called for freezing an entire alley to run a bobsled down it. Practical considerations however modified the plan to two rails of ice for the tracks of the bobsled to ride in. The launching mechanism would be several large weights pulling the bobsled through a couple pulleys. By party time, however, the track was not yet frozen. Not giving up hope, it was attacked with crushed ice and liquid nitrogen until it finally froze solid about one hour after the party had started. Unfortunately, the catapult mechanism refused to work. Not even the efforts of Wern could avail to bushwack the catapult to work. Froggy was given an honorary push down the track in honor of his inspirational efforts, and the ride resorted to Frosh power for the rest of the night. As always, the party was a screaming success with a great band and bar, and with the fire pit filled with bean bags. Despite the only partial success of ride, it was still one of the best interhouses ever.

Athletically, first term was highly successful for Page house. Winning both Softball and Swimming, we also held the Discobolus trophy for most of the term by tying the stupid asshole smelly Phlems in soccer in the first challenge, but losing to them in football on their next challenge. Incidentally, they also challenged in bobsled racing as a fourth sport, but managed to get out of playing it off through a ruling of the IHC.

Interhouse

Alley challenges opened up with the famed greased Frosh races. Weight alley came out on top, and each of their Frosh received the coveted Spong award. First term also saw the rise of Cosmic Way as they snatched the alley trophy from Weight Alley in a volleyball challenge. And of course, the Waiters were wimpy, and Clara screamed.

Second term saw the resurrection of KCAL as well as a resurrection of house spirit with the new house elections. By some miraculous quirk of fate, most everyone seems satisfied with the new officers which includes a five-man Social Team that manages to organize great house parties and bowling flicks and other such erratia, and there is even a Secretary who gets impressive houselists out despite the fact that she's a girl

Somehow when no one was looking, Thug alley managed to rape and pillage Cosmic Way, bringing home the coveted bowling pin. Weight alley of course wanted the silly thing back, still upset over losing it to a bunch of girls. Thus they made the studliest challenge of the year, the Famous Tommy's double cheese challenge. Both alleys managed to average about four Tommy's Burgers per person, with Thug alley prevailing by a narrow margin.

As usual, we did incredibly well in interhouse again second term. Winning tennis, and track, it seems win was not a strong enough word for our volleyball performance, beating those slimy little Phlems 15-0 and 15-5. Of course we regained the Discobolus trophy, in a volleyball challenge. Maybe the Phlems will decide to accept in Wrestling next year instead.

Along the lines of randomness, the RA's decided that it would be fun to make the members of each alley get up at some ungodly hour Sunday morning and eat breakfast.

Clare shows Hank her moves

There was a waterfight with Phleming that showed how well Phlems can cower in their house, and an awesome three house party. Hell froze over one day, which was coincidentally the day the Frosh beat the Sophmores in Football. To warm things up, the house had a spontaneous hot-dog roast in the courtyard.

Shouldn't those Frosh be in Chemistry

Thus comes third term, the term of tanning in the courtyard and lawns, the term of mellowness and flicking. Being on a rather low budget, the Social Team managed to cook up an amazing party consisting of two live bands and a big live burrito. Of course the bands played for free since they were all Page house members, and one of the bands was created specifically for that party. Ditch day was ever tomorrow, but when it came, we were ready. Having no brute force stacks, we blew down RC's door and spent until 5:10 to break Eric and Glen's stack. A big group went backpacking where a few of them were forced into skinny dipping. Nonchalantly the house coasted to another interhouse victory by relaxing and taking second in basketball and third in football. Discobolus looked grim. It appeared that we would have to settle for a tie with the Phlems, but, as fate would have it, we spazzed and turned in our challenge too late. The always sportsman like Phlems thought about accepting it anyway, but after all, it was only a thought. Waiting until the last week of the year, a group of Page Dudes living at Chester calling themselves Bimbos challenged the rest of the house to a pentathlon of underwater sports. The victor was undetermined and therefore by default the house, but everyone had a good time at the pool party anyway. I hear there are plans to make underwater rugby an interhouse sport.

Random things to happen this year: as everywhere, cubing became one of the most common pastimes. The Loge, a collection of miscellaneous derelicts and remnants of Crash Alley rocked and drank and had nitrous parties. Jeff Vollin rattled windows around campus in his mad search for the ultimate firecracker. Vance made several novel videotapes, one depicting his life as a Page froshling. People parked in Barbara's spot, much to their dismay, and there were donuts in the RA suite everytime we gathered there and screamed loud enough.

And of course, the Frosh were wimps, the Sophmores were assholes, the Juniors and Seniors weren't anything. The Phlems were cowardly smelly assholes and wimps and the waiters were wimps too. At least Clara stopped screaming.
